What's included in this 1 day workshop?

This workshop introduces students to painting with enamels. Enamels have been used as far back as the 13th century. Glass is ground extremely finely to create a powder that can be sifted on to metal or glass bases and then fired or can be mixed with a medium to form a "Paint" to be used like any traditional painting medium.

This workshop covers the following:

- Review of popular enamel brands
- Understanding mixing mediums
- Tools and materials required
- Painting your project using our 6 step painting process
- Creating a simple background
- Firing schedules for enamels

All materials and firings included

What will I make in 1 day?

In our enamel workshops we use a pre-selected image so that all participants are able to follow Jill in the step by step painting process.

This is usually something like a fox or hare on a small curve or hanging ornament with a simple background.

The piece will be fired and slumped and available for you to collect approximately 2 weeks after your workshop.

We are always happy to chat about your ideas prior to the workshop and accommodate requests if we can – give us a call.
